Read the following passage and answer the questions:

A volcano is a kind of mountain, but it is special. It has a hole at the top, and from time to time it erupts which means that lava comes out from the opening, and spreading over the ground, often for many kilometers. This makes volcanoes very dangerous places; firstly because the lava is very hot, and secondly because of the poisonous gases that come out of the opening as well. People are often killed if they live in towns close to a volcano when it erupts. But in some ways, volcanoes are very useful, too. The lava, after it cools makes new rock, and the grey ash that also comes out of a volcano, falls on to the ground like heavy dust, and makes the soil richer so plants can grow easily. Volcanoes are found in many parts of the world –Europe, Japan, North and south America and Africa. Some of these still erupt a lot, others have stopped completely.

Rubbish contains things that we need. Instead of throwing it away, we should be taking these valuable materials out to use again-recycling them.

Of course, recycling is not easy; it needs a lot of organization and it is expensive. But it is possible. We could make it easy for people who want to recycle things themselves. For example, some countries have 'bottle banks' places where people leave empty bottles for recycling.

We could make recycled materials cheaper than new ones. Many bottles are 'returnable'. Companies pay money for each bottle which is given back to them. Glass and plastic can also be recycled. Even rubbish which can't be recycled can be burned in power stations to make electricity.
