Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Elizabeth Blackwell was born in England in 1821, and emigrated to New York city when she was ten years old. One day she decided that she wanted to become a doctor.

That was nearly impossible for a woman in the middle of the nineteenth century. After writing many letters seeking admission to medical schools, she was finally accepted by a doctor in Philadelphia. So determined was she that she taught at school and gave music lessons to earn money for her tuition.

In 1849, after graduation from medical school, she decided to further her education in Paris. She wanted to be a surgeon, but a serious eye infection forced her to give up the idea. Upon returning to the United States, she found it difficult to start her own practice because she was a woman. By 1857 Elizabeth and her sister, also a doctor, along with another female doctor, managed to open a new hospital, the first for women and children. Besides being the first female physician and founding her own hospital, she established the first medical school for women.

Read the following passage , then answer the questions:

In Egypt, the tourism industry has come to hold a position of great importance lately. It is felt that it could help increase the national income. In some European countries, tourism has brought in millions of dollars yearly, although they lack the natural and historical attractions we have in Egypt.

We could, for instance, establish tourist villages for children on the Red Sea. We could teach fishing, swimming, diving and sailing there. Another good idea would be a village in the New Valley for horse riding. And what about villages for people with health problems like rheumatism? The warm dry climate of Aswan and Helwan would help them get better.

Our tourist today wants efficient and friendly service. He would probably prefer to try our samples of our local food rather than to eat the international meals, which are served, in some places. It must also be remembered that most tourists nowadays are seldom rich. Many of them are students or hardworking employees. So what is needed is not expensive hotels but clean comfortable places to sleep and eat in at reasonable prices. This, too, would encourage Egyptians to travel more and more around their lovely country.

Read the following passage , then answer the questions:

What determines يحدد the kind of home we live in? one of the things that strikes people who travel is that homes look different from one place to another. Yet, three factors climate, available building materials and lifestyle usually decide the kind of housing a place will have.

People build homes that will protect them from bad weather and let them enjoy good weather. In very wet countries, homes are often built high off the ground to protect people from floods. Where the weather is very hot or very cold, people sometimes live underground. In places where the weather is mild, homes often have courtyards that are open to the sky. Some Middle East countries have homes with thick walls that keep people warm in winter and cool in summer.

Homes are built from materials that are easily available, and sometimes these can be very unusual. In hot, dry places people often use mud to build homes because wood is hard to find. The Eskimos often live in temporary houses of snow when they go on hunting trips.

Perhaps people's lifestyles are more obvious in their houses. Most of us think of a home as a permanent place, but the Bedouins who travel from one location to another often live in tents that they can carry with them. Homes not only offer shelter, but are a key to the culture and way of life of people. For this reason, they have always fascinated historians.

a) Answer the following questions:

- 1-What surprises people who travel from place to place?
- 2-Where is it difficult to use wood in building a house?
- 3-What are the things which decide the kind of house?
- 4-Why are Eskimo houses made of snow?
